4. Cultural and Natural Attractions

Thailand would not have been able to gain the status of a tourist node without the presence of some iconic cultural and natural attractions. The identity of Thailand's cultural charm is nestled in the ancient buildings that take the form of temples. Most of them, if not all, are glitters and towering, while featuring Buddha images alongside the aroma of soft incense. In northern, central, and southern Thailand, villagers perform locals' activities that reflect the simple life of their ancestors down to the present day. The most natural attraction is in northern Thailand, where the national parks are thick with hills. The most famous one is Doi Inthanon, located at Chiang Mai, Thailand's northern moor and highest peak. Sometimes the temperature here drops to 0° C. Still, the beauty of nature cannot be sealed. In eastern Thailand, this scenic panorama on the eastern seaboard stretches from South Bangkok to Chanthaburi. Lying along the shores of the bay are boisterous cities, serene fishing villages, waterfalls beautifully cascading down rocky cliffs, glorious beaches, and numerous temples. These respective breathtaking sights give way to a sense of serenity and awe combined with the magic of nature. The exotic images of lovely sunny days spent sailing past the tiny islands surrounding Similan are the stuff dreams are made of. Crystal-clear waters appear to glitter in the sun, inviting you to plunge into their spectacularly vibrant underwater world teeming with every hue of marine life. Further down south is the enchanting Phuket Island-an idyllic haven for travelers from all parts of the globe in search of rest and rejuvenation. This is a veritable garden of fantasy, a place where style and simplicity go hand in hand. Warm turquoise waters rip right up onto the white sandy beaches, framing a perfect picture setting for days of bliss and tranquility. From the treatments of luxurious spas to the exploration of possible water sports, there is something for every taste in Phuket. But it is not just the breathtaking natural beauty that makes Thailand a first-class destination, for it is the friendly and warm nature of the people that creates the difference for Thailand. 5.1. Factors Considered

Since the concept of honeymoon might be different from country to country, let's define for this article what honeymoon is: a destination full of natural beauty, laid back, and offering romantic activities for the couples. We will judge the top five honeymoons for international travelers on the following grounds: whether the setting is romantic, relaxed, and private; availability of activities; unique things to do but with a bonus for unique local experiences, including interaction with the culture when possible. Easy and safe access is important. There will be some adventure on the route, but it must be appropriate for all and light enough. Having privacy in mind and special side experiences, we would expect at least a 3-4-star hotel for the newlyweds' stay. A minimum of 3 full nights is required, though we can extend up to 7 nights for relaxed travelers. Of course, one part includes cost consideration, but we know every couple has different preferences and budgets. We do try to give an equal balance in spending on average with a 3 to 4-star hotel stay, meals, spending, and special activities included in the cost list. We know some couples tend to spend less when they are in a place they often visit or vice versa. Based on the previous factors and reports of the available local experiences and activities, the top five honeymoons for international travelers are selected. Thailand offers a variety of attractions, cosmopolitan life, and famous beaches, for which Thailand is well known to all for its natural beauty, exciting temples, and ruins. Thai people are friendly and have adopted enough English to be of service to our tourists. From the tradition and culture that are unique in Thailand, the report suggests that this country indeed can have much to offer the honeymooners. Safety and ease of access are very important when it comes to a honeymoon destination. We know that easy traveling is fundamental, and all couples should do is enjoy their romantic vacations. It is true that a pinch of adventure creates thrills; however, it should always be accessible and not overwhelming to those honeymooners who want a more leisurely holiday. To have the most indulgent stay, we recommend accommodation with a rating of at least 3-4 stars to properly spoil honeymooners in comfort and luxury. For the couples who want a shorter honeymoon, at least 3 full nights are needed for the splendor of the destination to shine through. Of course, for those who would like to stay longer, we can give up 7 nights if your pace is a little more relaxed while exploring. We realize that every couple is different in what they want and what their budget allows. As such, we balance our cost list to reflect the average cost yet include those special experiences. It would, however, remain incomplete without the most interesting main town that this place boasts: an attractive historical center with nicely restored mansions. Exploring this charming area offers a great and contrasting holiday. Unlike other tourist destinations, Phuket is a combination of Thai residents with expatriates living for a long time on the island. It has grown over time in the tourism industry, which took some time to get off the ground. From what was once a busy port, the major town of Phuket has developed as a financial and commercial center. During your stay, do not forget to drop in at the morning and evening markets, featuring delicious street food and different kinds of merchandise that would genuinely raise your eyebrows. Check the dates and times for these markets so that you will not miss shopping in them. You will be surprised to see vibrant marine life while exploring underwater, along with colorful coral reefs adding their magic to the island. The main town of Phuket is something any visitor should not miss because it holds loads of history, tantalizing odors of street food, and nature views that will leave your mouth open. Whether one desires to take in the culture, indulge in some seriously good food, or experience and enjoy serious adventure, there is something for everyone. Come and equitably experience the Magic of Phuket where relaxation and adventure are combined for holidays that create so many special moments. Geographical Overview of Phuket Phuket is located on the west coast of southern Thailand in the Andaman Sea. It is Thailand's largest island, roughly the size of 570 square kilometers or 346,177 rai. The provincial capital is Phuket Town, situated in the southeast and obviously the hub of the island since it is the center of business and local government. The population of Phuket has recently reached about 460,000 people, and this number is still growing. Many people in Phuket have originally come from other areas of Thailand, while foreigners investing, doing business, or retiring also reside in Phuket. In addition to the many different values of Phuket, the island is set in a great location: about 862 km from Bangkok, 3 hours by land, 9 hours by comfortable VIP linen bus, about 448 kilometers from the neighboring island of Krabi, 1.5 hours by land and ferry, or a speedboat which takes only 1 hour, and 200 kilometers from the closest destination in southern Thailand, Ranong. Romantic Attractions in Phuket for sure, romantic guests will love not only the honeymoon villas of this resort but also a luxury restaurant and a beachfront dining area where you can spend a romantic night having dinner from an international menu with the flavor of Europe. The café offers breathtaking ocean views and meals so that one can have a very nice memory of the authentic tastes. The Beauty Salon, Spa, and its couple massage package promise to keep love fresh and happy. Meanwhile, the hotel boasts of a private beach, limousine service to take one around, yacht rental, enjoy tranquility, and calm comfort of a getaway. A heritage gallery, camping, and picnicking, flora and fauna of the surroundings may be watched together along with the monkeys by a couple. The resort also offers snorkeling and diving services. At sunset time, the couples will see the ocean, have a look around, and taste the loving sip of the bubbly world. In the area, swaying palm trees can be seen with beach chairs, lulled by waves, tranquil sunsets for long. The hotel is a tropical romantic paradise. Adventure Activities in Phuket A visit to Phuket isn't confined to engaging in the local sights, eating good food, or relaxing on the beach. Here's what you can do, especially if you are an adventure enthusiast. Scuba diving Dive enthusiasts consider the waters of the Andaman Sea some of the most beautiful in the world. With a certificate, you are supposed to find a diving boat offering tours at one of the following places: Anemone Reef, Shark Point, Phi Phi Island, King Cruiser, or the wreck of a World War II era ship off Racha Yai. Courses are also offered in dive shops and schools in Phuket. Not yet a scuba diving license holder? You could take the Discover Scuba Diving tour wherein you do a brief theory and breathing technique instruction with a controlled pool dive before proceeding out to open the sea with your instructor by your side. Sea Kayaking You can go on a sea kayaking tour around the islands of Phuket. Ideal places include the sea caves around Phang Nga Bay, the karst mountain formations of Koh Hong in Krabi, and the breathtakingly beautiful limestone cliffs of the Similan Islands. The sea caves and hangs reveal a vision of pretty much unique things to this bit of the planet: the maritime stand of mangrove trees inside the caves, the hidden emerald-green sea lagoon-things you never knew were there until you rounded the last outcrop of rock. Scenery doesn't get any better than this. The place is also a home for many cliffs wall nesting species; almost be assured to spot sea eagles and white-bellied sea eagles among the sightings in your tour. Cultural Experience in Phuket If one were to refer to Phuket as a land of wonder, then that would be an understatement. There is plenty to do on this island and plenty of places to visit. One of the most salient features that Phuket can offer is a whole host of culturally rewarding experiences for every kind of visitor. Though nothing compares to its beaches, water sports, and pulsating nightlife, the island's traditional and religious heritage has more in it for the culturally touring traveler. Visiting shrines, going around Old Town Phuket, and the lively weekend market are among the things to do during your city tour. Make your first step in experiencing the culture of Phuket by visiting its most popular temple, Wat Chalong, which is home to an impressive 60-meter-high stupa that is self-encompassing in some of Lord Buddha's bone slivers. Other religious places of interest include the Big Buddha: a 45-meter white marble statue overlooking Phuket with breathtaking, panoramic views that make it all worth it in an upward, long 25-minute drive right to the mountaintop. While the island is painted in the refreshing colors of holy white and gold, Phuket's Old Town has taken influences from Malay, Chinese, Portuguese, and Bahraini settlers, which comes alive with a vibrant display of shops and architecture. Every weekend, there is a street fair conducted at the Old Town where visitors come to taste simple local food, buy souvenirs, trinkets, traditional Thai cosmetics, and other local products. The other cultural place that is found in Old Town Phuket is the Chamber of Commerce with Sino-Portuguese architecture, designed from European courtyards. The cultural sports festival held in March every year captures folk plays, traditional dances, regional martial arts, and other competitions that provide excellent exposure to various cultural performances. If you are keen on the arts, sign up to a cookery course or in the traditional food course. Over the past few years, a growing amount of evidence pointing to the decline of tourism in many of those destinations long regarded as the jewels of international playgrounds has been discussed. Increased crime, poverty and disease, poor infrastructure and environmental abuse are but a few of the concerns capable of taking the gloss off the most dazzling of tourist attractions. But Phuket, with its affable residents able to look beyond the short-term hedonism of its tourists, has managed to retain its enviable position as an international vacation hot spot for the romantics and pioneers amongst us. In short, Phuket offers a perfect holiday destination for romantics and adventurers alike, from indulging in tropical pleasures to shopping bargains and great choices of places to relax, be pampered, or take part in some more energetic activities. If you haven't yet experienced the heady mix of sun, sea, sand, and relaxation offered by Phuket, then perhaps it's about time you did so.
